At 1:00pm PST this Thanksgiving the Fox NFL Sports pregame show's Social Justice Awareness Initiative will feature Jim Warne to discuss historical and contemporary issues Native Americans are working to overcome and improve through tradition, culture, resiliency and belief in the 7th Generation philosophy from Lakota Spiritual Leader and Educator Black Elk.

Jim Warne is an enrolled member of the Oglala Lakota Tribal Nation. He is a retired Professional Football Player, Actor, Stuntman, and current Educator, Documentarian, Filmmaker, Academic and Advocate. Jim will share his perspectives and historical context for Tribal Nations in today's contemporary society. Jim's invaluable work is recognized through his highly acclaimed award winning documentary film, "7th Generation" which is available on Amazon Prime, Xfinity and iMDB.

Jim's has worked with over 150 Tribal Nations and various universities. He works hard to bring the vision of Black Elk to reality through his teachings and Athletic/Life Skills camps for Native youth. Relying on his own experiences and looking up to Jim Thorpe, a member of the Sac and Fox Nation, Olympic Gold Medalist and FIRST Pro-football president/commissioner in 1920. Jim Warne hopes that this will be the beginning of a dialogue for Tribal Nations to be recognized as more than "Something Else", "Other", or the "R-Word". Please watch this historic first on Thanksgiving Day.

"I hope to make my ancestors proud today"

Pilamaya,

Jim E Warne, Oglala Lakota, President
